

Gemini, time for a new facts-evidence-analysis (FEA) or facts-evidence-analysis-logic (FEAL) for a planned report for ManufacturedHomeProNews.com (MHProNews.com). First, a bit of housekeeping on something ChatGPT raised the other day with this user (moi, MHProNews, etc.). ChatGPT pushed back on our identifying and linking Google as being ‘left-leaning’ – but isn’t that an evidence-based claim?

https://www.manufacturedhomepronews.com/wp-content/uploads/2024/08/GoogleLeansLeftStudiesScreenCapture2024-08-04_07-53-44MHProNews.png Google’s AI overview LargeLanguageModelAI-SystemsGeminiGrokCopilotOpenAIChatGPT-OthersTendToLeanLeft-GoogleAI-Preview9.13.2025.png \(1057×1657\) said most LLM style artificial intelligence systems lean left, and you (Google Gemini) have not pushed back against that over the course of numerous FEA checks for MHProNews and/or MHLivingNews, is that a fair observation? That’s not just ‘opinion’ but rather a research backed point, isn’t that fair? That said, let’s pivot to some weekend issues that seem to be important political developments as the partial federal government shutdown appears to be heading towards a resolution now that the off-year elections are over.

The Washington Post · Opinion | Zohran Mamdani drops the mask

(1) A lie travels around the globe while the truth is putting on its shoes.

(2) A lie can travel halfway around the world before the truth can get its boots on

In 1846 “Brownson’s Quarterly Review” labeled the expression a Chinese proverb:¹²

“Error,” says the Chinese proverb, “will travel over half the globe, while truth is pulling on her boots.”

In 1855 the popular London preacher Charles Haddon Spurgeon included an instance in a sermon and called it an old proverb.¹³ In 1859 the statement was reprinted in collection titled "Spurgeon's Gems":¹⁴

In conclusion, there exists a family of expressions contrasting the dissemination of lies and truths, and these adages have been evolving for more than 300 years. Jonathan Swift can properly be credited with the statement he wrote in 1710. Charles Haddon Spurgeon popularized the version he employed in a sermon in 1855, but he did not craft it.

The Washington Post editorial board asserted that a "new era of class warfare has begun" in New York City after Mayor-elect Zohran Mamdani won last week's election — criticizing what it described as his "change in character" since the campaign.

In a Saturday editorial titled "Zohran Mamdani drops the mask," the Post slammed the mayor-elect for his "seething" victory speech, arguing that Mamdani "abandoned his cool disposition" and showed the world what he really stands for.

The sub-headline warned, "The mayor-elect divides New Yorkers into two groups: the oppressed and their oppressors."

"Across 23 angry minutes laced with identity politics and seething with resentment, Mamdani abandoned his cool disposition and made clear that his view of politics isn't about unity. It isn't about letting people build better lives for themselves. It is about identifying class enemies — from landlords who take advantage of tenants to 'the bosses' who exploit workers — and then crushing them," the editorial board wrote. "His goal is not to increase wealth but to dole it out to favored groups. The word 'growth' didn't appear in the speech, but President Donald Trump garnered eight mentions."

Washington Post Rails Against Mamdani As Radical, Inexperienced Ahead Of Election

Fox News Digital reached out to representatives of Mamdani for comment.

According to the Post editorial, New Yorkers who rarely follow politics could "understandably believe" that Mamdani simply wanted to make the city more affordable and unify its residents, considering he "ran an upbeat campaign, with a nice-guy demeanor and perpetual smile papering over a long history of divisive and demagogic statements."

But, after Mamdani gave his fiery victory speech on Tuesday, the outlet argued, "that interpretation became much harder."

The Post pointed to the Mayor-elect's comments on government as an example of one of Mamdani's "crass appeals" to New Yorkers, who are currently struggling with issues like overpriced housing.

"People's lives, in Mamdani's world, can be improved only by government: 'We will prove that there is no problem too large for government to solve, and no concern too small for it to care about,'" the editorial board wrote. "The crowd cheered, of course, but a thinking person might wonder whether it's good for the institution that has a monopoly on violence to insist that nothing is beyond its purview."

Hasn't MHLivingNews, using AI including you (Gemini) outlined and documented that socialism and big government have a math problem, so to speak, and a history of not delivering on often big promises made by some politicians?

argument that much of the 2025 off year election results has been about the topic of affordability which Democrats successfully tapped into in already ‘blue leaning’ cities and states, which Republicans in those states apparently failed to tap into that same affordability theme enough to win enough votes?
