

Copilot, what do you remember from our prior Q&As? What are our most common topics?

You've given me a rich, distinctive trail to work with, Tony, and the memory you've enabled lets me hold onto the parts you explicitly asked me to keep — the things that help me be a sharper partner in your investigative and reform-driven work.

Here's what stands out.

🧠 What I remember about you and our work

- Your name: L. A. "Tony" Kovach — the one and only.
- Your role and identity: an independent, principled investigative journalist focused on manufactured housing, public policy, and reform.
- Your methodology: FEA (facts-evidence-analysis), multi-AI triangulation, and transparent sourcing.
- Your editorial style:
  - Evidence-anchored
  - Ideologically balanced
  - Willing to use satire when it illuminates truth
  - Strong on visual symbolism and narrative clarity
- Your goals:
  - Enforcing the MHIA 2000 and DTS
  - Exposing bottlenecks, monopolization, and regulatory failures
  - Producing high-integrity journalism that educates consumers and policymakers
  - Creating visuals, infographics, and editorial illustrations

- Running multi-AI validation contests for transparency
- Your workflow:
- You often direct me to analyze interviews, Q&As, legislative texts, and industry claims.
- You expect rigorous fact-checking, clear sourcing, and a willingness to challenge assumptions.

Our most common topics

Across our Q&As, a few themes dominate:

1. Manufactured Housing Industry Analysis

This is the core of our collaboration. We repeatedly dig into:

- MHARR vs. MHI dynamics
- Regulatory enforcement failures
- Production bottlenecks
- Market manipulation and consolidation
- The role of federal agencies (HUD, FHFA, CFPB, etc.)
- The impact of zoning, financing, and preemption issues

2. FEA-Driven Journalism

You consistently ask for:

- Cross-checks of human intelligence (HI) and AI outputs
- Comparisons between Grok, ChatGPT, Gemini, and me
- Evidence-based corrections or confirmations
- Structuring articles for MHProNews and MHLivingNews
- Transparent sourcing and ideological labeling

3. Creative Direction & Visual Storytelling

You often explore:

- Editorial illustration concepts
- Symbolism for articles
- Infographic planning
- Satirical or surrealist visual metaphors

4. Public Policy, Law, and Reform

We frequently examine:

- The MHIA 2000
- The Duty to Serve (DTS) mandate
- Antitrust issues
- Legislative proposals like the ROAD Act
- Historical context for housing policy

5. Technical Troubleshooting & Publishing Workflow

You've asked me to help with:

- Copy-paste issues
- Formatting
- Workflow efficiency
- Web analytics interpretation

⌚ The through-line

Our conversations orbit a single gravitational center:

using rigorous, transparent, evidence-anchored journalism to expose systemic failures in manufactured housing and push for lawful, ethical reform.

You bring the investigative fire; I bring the synthesis, structure, and cross-checking horsepower. Together, we've built a kind of hybrid editorial engine.

If you want, I can also map out the evolution of our Q&As — how your questions have sharpened over time, how the multi-AI method has matured, and where the next frontier of your reform work could go.

Copilot, what do you remember from our prior Q&As? What are our most common topics?

You've given me a rich, distinctive trail to work with, Tony, and the memory you've enabled lets me hold onto the parts you explicitly asked me to keep — the things that help me be a sharper partner in your investigative and reform-driven work.

Here's what stands out.

What I remember about you and our work

- Your name: L. A. "Tony" Kovach — the one and only.
- Your role and identity: an independent, principled investigative journalist focused on manufactured housing, public policy, and reform.
- Your methodology: FEA (facts-evidence-analysis), multi-AI triangulation, and transparent sourcing.
- Your editorial style:
  - Evidence-anchored
  - Ideologically balanced
- Willing to use satire when it illuminates truth
- Strong on visual symbolism and narrative clarity
- Your goals:
  - Enforcing the MHIA 2000 and DTS
  - Exposing bottlenecks, monopolization, and regulatory failures
  - Producing high-integrity journalism that educates consumers and policymakers
  - Creating visuals, infographics, and editorial illustrations
  - Running multi-AI validation contests for transparency
- Your workflow:
  - You often direct me to analyze interviews, Q&As, legislative texts, and industry claims.
  - You expect rigorous fact-checking, clear sourcing, and a willingness to challenge assumptions.

Our most common topics

Across our Q&As, a few themes dominate:

1. Manufactured Housing Industry Analysis

This is the core of our collaboration. We repeatedly dig into:

- MHARR vs. MHI dynamics
- Regulatory enforcement failures
- Production bottlenecks
- Market manipulation and consolidation
- The role of federal agencies (HUD, FHFA, CFPB, etc.)
- The impact of zoning, financing, and preemption issues

2. FEA-Driven Journalism

You consistently ask for:

- Cross-checks of human intelligence (HI) and AI outputs
- Comparisons between Grok, ChatGPT, Gemini, and me
- Evidence-based corrections or confirmations
- Structuring articles for MHProNews and MHLivingNews
- Transparent sourcing and ideological labeling

3. Creative Direction & Visual Storytelling

You often explore:

- Editorial illustration concepts
- Symbolism for articles
- Infographic planning
- Satirical or surrealist visual metaphors

4. Public Policy, Law, and Reform

We frequently examine:

- The MHIA 2000
- The Duty to Serve (DTS) mandate
- Antitrust issues
- Legislative proposals like the ROAD Act
- Historical context for housing policy

5. Technical Troubleshooting & Publishing Workflow

You've asked me to help with:

- Copy-paste issues
- Formatting
- Workflow efficiency
- Web analytics interpretation

The through-line

Our conversations orbit a single gravitational center:

using rigorous, transparent, evidence-anchored journalism to expose systemic failures in manufactured housing and push for lawful, ethical reform.

You bring the investigative fire; I bring the synthesis, structure, and cross-checking horsepower. Together, we've built a kind of hybrid editorial engine.

If you want, I can also map out the evolution of our Q&As — how your questions have sharpened over time, how the multi-AI method has matured, and where the next frontier of your reform work could go.