Grok, is this accurate: "Steve Burke: The longtime CEO of NBCUniversal and senior executive at Comcast sits on Berkshire's board. His entire career has been dedicated to content creation, cable distribution, and information delivery. [1] Susan Decker & Charlotte Guyman: The board has also featured Susan Decker (former President of Yahoo!) and Charlotte Guyman (a long-tenured director at Microsoft). [1]"

Mostly accurate, with one important correction on Guyman.

Steve Burke — Accurate. He has been a Berkshire Hathaway director since 2009. He was Chairman and CEO of NBCUniversal from 2011 through 2020 and President of Comcast Cable from 1998 to 2011, so “longtime CEO of NBCUniversal and senior Comcast executive” is fair. Saying his entire career was content, cable, and information delivery is a bit broad: he also worked at Disney before Comcast and later founded Madison Valley Partners. The media/distribution core of his career is still correct.

Susan Decker — Accurate. She has been a Berkshire director since 2007 and was President of Yahoo! (2007–2008), after earlier roles there as CFO and EVP.

Charlotte Guyman — The Berkshire part is right; the Microsoft part is not. She has been a Berkshire director since 2003 (long-tenured there). She was a general manager at Microsoft until July 1999, not a long-tenured director on Microsoft’s board. That is the line that needs fixing.

Berkshire’s 2026 proxy still lists Burke, Decker, and Guyman as current directors.
